3. Legislative Background

3.1.

Mandatory licensing of short-term lets in Scotland will be introduced from 1 October 2022 through the implementation of the Civic Government (Scotland) Act 1982 (Licensing of Short-term Lets) Order 2022 (“the Order”) which amended the Civic Government (Scotland) Act 1982 (“the Act”). The Act and the Order are published at Act and Order. The Scottish Government’s Guidance for (1) Hosts and Operators is published at Guidance for Hosts and Operators and for (2) Licensing Authorities, Letting Agencies and Platforms is published at Guidance for licensing authorities.

“Short-term let” means the use of residential accommodation provided by a host in the course of business to a guest, where all of a number of criteria are met. It includes home sharing, home letting and secondary letting of a separate premises. Further details are contained within the draft Statement of Policy attached as Appendix 1 to this report.

3.3.

From 1 October 2022, new hosts and operators will require to have a licence. This means that, if they were not using their premises to provide short-term lets before 1 October 2022, they will not be permitted to take bookings or receive guests until they obtain a licence. If hosts and operators have already been using their property to provide short-term lets before 1 October 2022, they will have until 1 April 2023 to apply for a licence and will be able to operate in the meantime by continuing to advertise and promote their premises, take bookings and receive guests while their application is processed. All hosts and operators must be licensed by 1 July 2024.

Section 1A of Schedule 1 to the Act requires licensing authorities to publish a statement of policy which will be applied in relation to temporary exemptions from the requirement to obtain a short-term let licence.

Paragraph 1A(1) of Schedule 1 to the Act provides that a licensing authority may, on application made to it, grant an exemption from the requirement to obtain a short-term let licence in relation to a specified property or properties and during a specified period (which must not exceed six weeks in any period of 12 months).

3.4.2.

Paragraph 1A(2) of Schedule 1 to the Act provides that a licensing authority may consult the chief constable and the Scottish Fire and Rescue Service in relation to an application made under sub-paragraph (1).

3.4.3.

Paragraph 1A(3) of Schedule 1 to the Act provides that a licensing authority may attach conditions to an exemption granted under sub-paragraph (1), and the provisions of Part I of the Act relating to the attaching of conditions to licences shall apply to the attaching of conditions to exemptions under the subsection.

Paragraph 1A(4) of Schedule 1 to the Act provides that a licensing authority may elect not to grant exemptions under sub-paragraph (1) for:

- Any premises, or
- A class or classes of premises.

3.4.5.

Paragraph 1A(5) of Schedule 1 to the Act provides that a licensing authority must publish, and keep under review, a statement of its policy in relation to the exercise of its functions under the paragraph.

3.4.6.

Paragraph 1A(6) of Schedule 1 to the Act provides that a licensing authority must publish a policy statement under sub-paragraph (5):

- on or before 1 October 2022, and
- on or before 1 October every three years thereafter.

3.4.7.

Paragraph 1A(7) of Schedule 1 to the Act provides that, in preparing and reviewing a policy statement under sub-paragraph (5), a licensing authority must consult with such persons as the licensing authority considers appropriate.

3.4.8.

Paragraph 1A(8) of Schedule 1 to the Act provides that a policy statement published under sub-paragraph (5) must include information regarding:

- The fees chargeable for a temporary exemption application, and
- The time period within which the licensing authority will reach a final decision on a temporary exemption application.

3.4.9.

Paragraph 1A(9) of Schedule 1 of the Act provides that the policy statement published under sub-paragraph (5) must be made available on the licensing authority's website.

A draft Statement of Policy on Temporary Exemptions from the requirement to obtain Short-term Let licences is attached as Appendix 1 to this report.

4. Principle of Temporary Exemptions

4.1.

The Scottish Government's principal policy intention underlying the Order is to ensure that all premises used for short-term lets meet essential safety standards. Mandatory licence conditions are prescribed by Article 6 and Schedule 3 to the Order to address that policy intention.

4.2.

Scottish Government Guidance suggests that licensing authorities:

- May grant temporary exemptions to accommodate a large influx of visitors over a short period to support sports championship competitions and arts festivals, for example.
- May decide to adopt a policy of granting temporary exemptions for specific types of licences (for example home sharing and home letting only). This could be used to facilitate those who are interested in trying out home sharing or home letting to do so by making an application for a temporary exemption before deciding whether or not they wish to do so permanently, requiring a full licence application.

Normally an exemption from a policy provides an applicant with relief from certain burdens that only affect those who have not been afforded an exemption. However, in the case of the requirement to obtain a short-term let licence, it is suggested that an exemption would provide little advantage to a licence holder and indeed would be likely to be unreasonably burdensome for the reasons set out below.

A policy intention of the Order is to ensure that premises are safe and of a certain standard. Given that most of the mandatory licence conditions relate to fundamental safety matters, and the Licensing Authority's own duty of care, it seems inconceivable that temporary exemptions granted should not be made subject to the same essential safety standards as those required for licences. A corollary of this however is that hosts who are awarded temporary exemptions would require to incur the same costs as licence holders in respect of achieving compliance with the mandatory licence conditions. These would include, for example, arranging for electrical items to be certified and ensuring that furniture met the prescribed safety standards. These costs would have a disproportionate impact on hosts obtaining temporary exemptions since a temporary exemption could only be obtained for a maximum of six weeks, whereas a short-term let licence can run for a period of up to three years.

In order to apply for a temporary exemption, an applicant would also still be obliged to pay a non-refundable application fee. In terms of the Act, a licensing authority is required to recover the costs of processing applications through fees charged for applications. Notwithstanding that a temporary exemption could only be granted for a period of up to six weeks, the work for the Licensing Authority in processing applications would be the same as that required for processing applications for temporary or permanent licences. While a restricted application fee could be charged for temporary exemptions in order to afford recognition to their limited duration, it would still be a significant fee and would be in line with the proposed fee for a temporary licence application which is referred to later in this report and is covered in a separate report to this Committee.

The dictionary definition of “exemption” is “the action of freeing or state of being free from an obligation or liability imposed on others”. As will be apparent from the analysis set out above, it is unlikely that the Licensing Authority would be in a position to allow an exemption satisfying this definition. Applicants would still have to go through a full application process and face being subject to the mandatory licence conditions just to obtain an exemption for up to six weeks. The application fee would still be significant, and the applicant would still have to absorb the costs of achieving compliance with the mandatory conditions.

On the basis that the Council’s policy position is that the mandatory licence conditions still need to apply because one of the main drivers behind the short-term letting legislation is to ensure that premises are safe and of a certain standard, it is suggested that the Council should adopt a policy in the first instance of not using its powers to grant temporary exemptions for premises. The Council would be able to comply with its duty by publishing a statement on its website to the effect that applications for exemptions will not be granted. Prospective hosts and operators interested in trying out short-term letting will still be able to apply for temporary licences, which will be granted for up to six weeks, subject to mandatory licence conditions prescribed by Article 6 of, and Schedule 3 to, the Order. Information about temporary licences is included in a separate report to this Committee.

5. Consultation

When consulting upon its draft Policy, the Council must consult with such persons as the Licensing Authority considers appropriate. It is proposed that the following parties be consulted:

- Officials of the Council in respect of planning, building standards and environmental health.
- Police Scotland.
- Providers of short-term lets via Destination Orkney at <https://www.orkney.com/life/industry/tourism>.
- The general public via public notices on www.orkney.gov.uk and in the local newspaper.

- Scottish Fire and Rescue Service.

The consultation period will commence from 27 June and will run to 7 August 2022. At its meeting on 1 September 2022, the Committee will require to assimilate all responses received in response to the consultation on the draft Policy and take them into account before adopting a Policy.

6. Equality Impact

An Equality Impact Assessment has been undertaken in respect of the Statement of Policy on Temporary Exemptions from the requirement to obtain Short-term Let Licences and is attached as Appendix 2 to this report.

7. Financial Implications

There are no financial implications arising directly as a result of the recommendations of this report.

1.5.	A Glossary of terms is attached at Appendix 2 to this statement.

2. What the Act Says About Temporary Exemptions

2.1.	The provisions of paragraph 1A of Schedule 1 of the Act are set out in the following paragraphs:
(1).	A licensing authority may, on application made to it, grant an exemption from the requirement to obtain a short-term let licence in relation to a specified property or properties and during a specified period (which must not exceed 6 weeks in any period of 12 months).
(2).	A licensing authority may consult the chief constable and the Scottish Fire and Rescue Service in relation to an application made under sub-paragraph (1).
(3).	A licensing authority may attach conditions to an exemption granted under sub-paragraph (1), and the provisions of Part I of this Act relating to the attaching of conditions to licences apply to the attaching of conditions to exemptions under this subsection.
(4).	A licensing authority may elect not to grant exemptions under sub-paragraph (1) for: (a) any premises, or (b) for a class or classes of premises.
(5).	A licensing authority must publish, and keep under review, a statement of its policy in relation to the exercise of its functions under this paragraph.
(6).	A licensing authority must publish a policy statement under sub-paragraph (5): (a) on or before 1 October 2022, and (b) on or before 1 October every three years thereafter.
(7).	In preparing and reviewing a policy statement under sub-paragraph (5), a licensing authority must consult with such persons as the licensing authority considers appropriate.

(8).	A policy statement published under sub-paragraph (5) must include information regarding: (a) the fees chargeable for a temporary exemption application, and (b) the time period within which the licensing authority will reach a final decision on a temporary exemption application.
(9).	The policy statement published under sub-paragraph (5) must be made available on the licensing authority's website.

3. This Authority will not Grant Temporary Exemptions

3.1.	The Council has considered whether to grant temporary exemptions from the requirement to obtain licences for the operation of short-term lets.
3.2.	Licensing authorities may elect not to grant exemptions for: (a) any premises, or (b) for a class or classes of premises.
3.3.	Scottish Government Guidance suggests that licensing authorities:
3.3.1.	may grant temporary exemptions to accommodate a large influx of visitors over a short period to support sports championship competitions and arts festivals, for example,
3.3.2.	may decide to adopt a policy of granting temporary exemptions for specific types of licences (for example home sharing and home letting only). This could be used to facilitate those that are interested in trying out home sharing or home letting to do so by making an application for a temporary exemption before deciding whether or not they wish to do so permanently, requiring a full licence application.
3.4.	The Council notes that the Scottish Government's principal policy intention is to ensure that all premises used for short-term lets meet essential safety standards and that mandatory licence conditions are prescribed by Article 6 of, and Schedule 3 to, the Order to address that policy intention.
3.5.	When considering whether to grant temporary exemptions, the Council notes that, normally, an exemption from a policy provides an applicant with relief from certain burdens that only affect those who have not been afforded an exemption. However, in the case of the requirement to obtain a short-term let licence, the Council notes that an exemption could provide little advantage to a licence holder and indeed would be likely to be unreasonably burdensome for the reasons set out below.
3.6.	A policy intention of the Order is to ensure that premises are safe and of a certain standard. Given that most of the mandatory licence conditions relate to fundamental safety matters, and the Licensing Authority's own duty of care, the Council note that it seems inconceivable that temporary exemptions granted should not be made

	subject to the same essential safety standards as those required for licences. A corollary of this however is that hosts who are awarded temporary exemptions would require to incur the same costs as licence holders in respect of achieving compliance with the mandatory licence conditions. These would include, for example, arranging for electrical items to be certified and ensuring that furniture met the prescribed safety standards. These costs would have a disproportionate impact on hosts obtaining temporary exemptions since a temporary exemption could only be obtained for a maximum of six weeks, whereas a short-term let licence can run for a period of up to three years.
3.7.	In order to apply for a temporary exemption, an applicant would also still be obliged to pay a non-refundable application fee. In terms of the Act, a licensing authority is required to recover the costs of processing applications through fees charged for applications. Notwithstanding that a temporary exemption could only be granted for a period of up to six weeks, the work for the Licensing Authority in processing applications would be the same as that required for processing applications for temporary or permanent licences. While a restricted application fee could be charged for temporary exemptions in order to afford recognition to their limited duration, it would still be a significant fee and would be in line with the proposed fee for a temporary licence application.
3.8.	The Council notes that a dictionary definition of “exemption” is “the action of freeing or state of being free from an obligation or liability imposed on others.” As will be apparent from the analysis set out above, it is unlikely that the Licensing Authority would be in a position to allow an exemption satisfying this definition. Applicants would still have to go through a full application process and face being subject to the mandatory licence conditions just to obtain an exemption for up to six weeks. The application fee would still be significant, and the applicant would still have to absorb the costs of achieving compliance with the mandatory conditions.
3.9.	On the basis of the above, the Council has decided to adopt a policy of not using its powers to grant temporary exemptions for premises.

4. Development of this Policy and Ongoing Review

4.1.	We consulted on the draft Statement of Policy before finalising and publishing it. A list of the persons we consulted is attached at Appendix 1 to this statement.
4.2.	This Statement of Policy has been prepared in accordance with the provisions of the Act and the Guidance. It will be applied during the 3-year period from 1 October 2022. It will be kept under review and revised, if appropriate, during that 3-year period.

4.3.	This Statement of Policy is subject to any amendments made to legislation, statutory regulations, licence conditions and guidance outwith our control.
4.4.	We will carry out our role under the Act in a transparent manner and in the public interest.
4.5.	This document should be read in conjunction with the Act and Guidance. This document relates to one aspect of licensing of short-term lets, being temporary exemptions, and not to the whole licensing scheme.
